Bunkers International preparing delivery of 1% IFO 380 in Colombia

1.00% max sulphur fuel oil will be available for customers in the port of Cartagena in July 2010

Orlando – March 31, 2010 – Bunkers International Corp (www.bunkersinternational.com), the leading independent marine fuel supplier in Colombia, in collaboration with its joint venture partner, Vanoil S.A., is in the final testing stages of an IFO 380 cst product with a max sulphur content of 1.00% for delivery in the Colombian bunker market. This new product will have viscosity levels in the range of 300-380 cst, with very low metal contents, and all other parameters well within ISO RMG.380 (2005.) The target delivery date for the new low sulphur product will be July 2010.

“We believe the availability of this product will be of great interest to vessels traveling to Europe from the Caribbean basin”, said John Canal, President of Bunkers International. “Ship owners can obtain the low-sulphur fuel they need to meet emerging regulations and then can do so while receiving the same high-quality service we have become known for. In fact, we also offer a full service and fees inclusive "bunkers-only" call to the Cartagena anchorage that should add to the appeal of this product. We will continue to provide our 1.50% max sulphur 380 cst for customers not requiring the 1.00% product. ”

All products sold by Bunkers International in Colombia are fully certified by the state run refinery and will meet all ISO designated specifications as noted above. Since its founding in 2000, the joint venture between Bunkers International and Vanoil has become the largest marine fuel supply operation in Colombia, with a fleet of seven barges, shore side storage, the most experienced crews, and sophisticated computerized blending systems.
